

IN THE SPECIFICATION:

On page 1, please amend the paragraph beginning at line 28 as follows:

--The use and operation of this kind of graphical user interface is familiar to many people especially to young and/or educated people who have used such user interfaces in many situations. But there are also many people who have not used said user interfaces before and they might have some problems in perceiving all those little things in the display. Another major problem is that they do not know where it is possible to navigate to ~~or~~ from the current position. It is especially difficult for the "first timers" to combine the information which is presented in many different places on the display. The user must also look simultaneously at many different points on the display. Such straying of eyes may confuse the user, whereby he or she may find the use of the user interface troublesome.--
